

Mind's Radiance

In the tradition of mahamudra, there is nothing that is established as an external object. Even though there is nothing that is established as an external object, the nature of mind—clear light, mahamudra—dawns as varied radiance. It dawns as radiance in various aspects.

From Mahamudra Vipashyana, Karne Choling, Summer 1993, Khenpo Tsultrim Gyamtso Rinpoche, P. 124 Translated by Jules B. Levinson